Foreword

This issue of The Thoroughbred marks the return of the publication after a six years' absence. During that period of silence, the University of Louisville entered upon the second century of its existence, celebrating in 1937 the one hundredth anniversary of its founding.

Because the University is still in the immediate vicinity of the century mark, this yearbook has been made a departure from the normal run of university annuals, and has been designed with the end to serve the function of commemorating the beginnings of the University, as well as perpetuating in more or less permanent and tangible form the spirit of the school year 1938-39.

An historical motif has been infused into the book. The staff has attempted to depict through this volume the progress the University has made since 1837, when the first unit of the University, the School of Medicine, was organized.

On the other hand, the yearbooks of other Universities have been scanned in order to learn the very latest and most modern technique in yearbook make-up. For that reason, this book differs radically in many respects from the yearbook of 1933, because of the great changes in style that have come about in the last six years.

The staff presents this book to the University—with the hope that it will be as meaningful to the reader of 1969 as to the reader of 1939.

LOUIS DEMBITZ BRANDEIS

Underwood and Underwood

Dedication

For a number of years Louis D. Brandeis, despite his many time-consuming duties as Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, has in countless ways shown his interest in the university of his native city. His contributions to the University Library and to the School of Law, in particular, have shown him to be one of the outstanding benefactors not only of the University, but the City of Louisville as well.

The 1939 Thoroughbred is accordingly dedicated to the Honorable Louis D. Brandeis, as a token of appreciation for his invaluable and never-to-be-forgotten services to the University of Louisville. Now that he has retired from that tribunal upon which he served the American people and to which he brought great honor, the staff of The Thoroughbred cordially wishes him long years of health and happiness.

DR. RAYMOND A. KENT

President

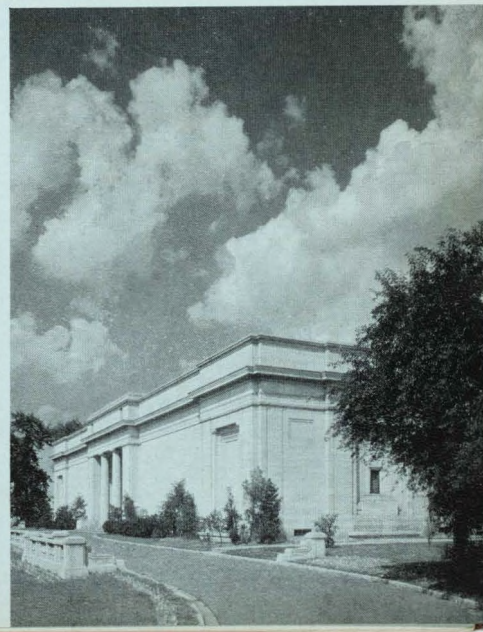

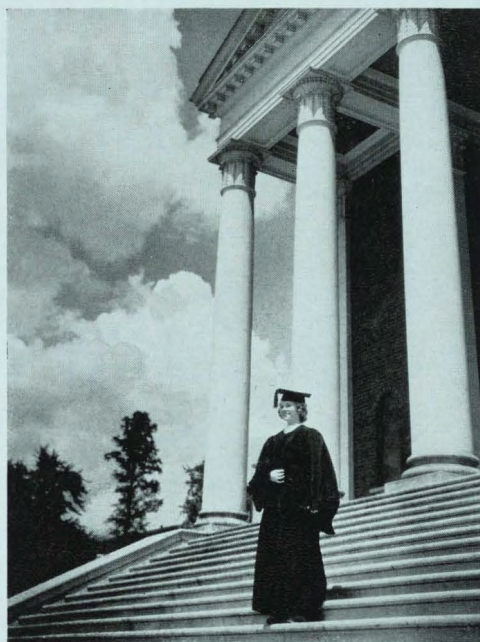

Raymond Asa Kent was born in Plymouth, Iowa, on July 21, 1883. He obtained his A.B. at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, in 1904, M.A. at Columbia University, New York City, in 1910, Ph.D. at Columbia University, New York City, in 1917, and LL.D. at Bucknell University in 1934.

Dr. Kent began his career as school administrator in Fountain, Minnesota, in 1904 as principal of graded schools. He later served as Professor of Education at the University of Minnesota from 1914 to 1916; Professor of Education at University of Kansas, from 1916 to 1920; Dean of School of Education at the University of Kansas from 1921 to 1923, and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Northwestern University from 1923 to 1929. He has been President of the University of Louisville since 1929.

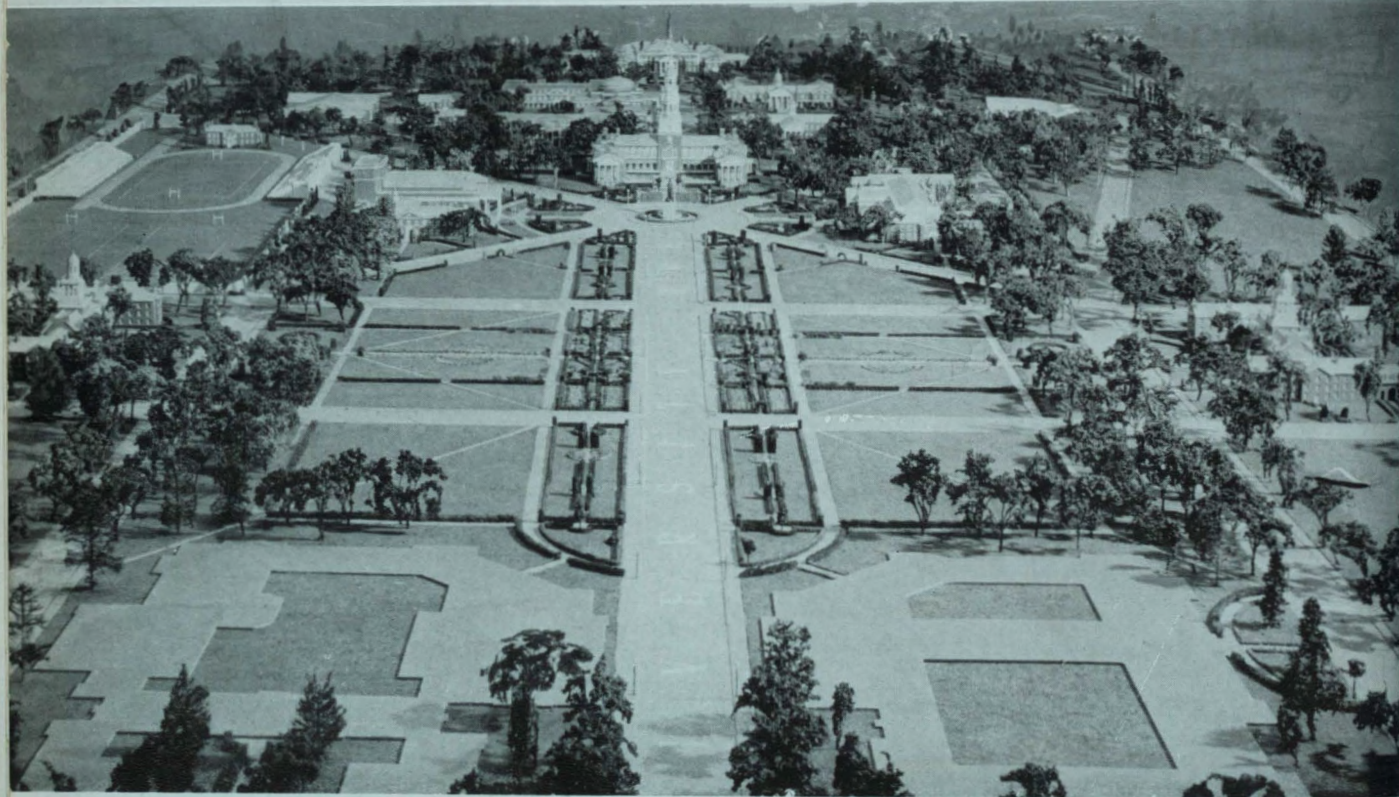

President Kent is a member of the National Education Association. He was President of the Association of Kentucky Colleges and Universities from 1933 to 1934, and President of Association of Urban Universities from 1933 to 1934.

He is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa, Phi Beta Kappa, the Pendennis Club, the Arts Club, the Rotary Club and the University Club.

President Kent is the author of the following works: "A Study of State Aid to Public Schools"; "Higher Education in America"; and "Foreign Language Equipment of 2,325 Doctors of Philosophy."

DEBATING

ONE HUNDRED AND ONE YEARS

There are two aspects of a university which we shall consider in this brief historical sketch of the University of Louisville. The first is a conception of the physical development of the institution. This, in our case, begins in the year 1837.

At the time as we consider the physical growth we shall have in mind the conception of a university as a way of thinking, a system of beliefs and ideals which bestow upon the institution its unity and self consciousness.

We wish to bring out also the fact that a municipal university is an expression of the culture of the community which sponsors it and that each part comes into being only as the community is ready for it.

There are two parts into which we have chosen to divide the history of the University of Louisville. The first part treats that period from 1837 to the year 1907, when the College of Liberal Arts came into being. Until this time the University as such had to a large extent existed in name only. It had consisted of two professional schools which were united only somewhat loosely. In 1907 the College of Liberal Arts was added to round out the picture. At the same time each of the other schools underwent a period of reorganization. The result was a rejuvenated university, one which was beginning to exist in fact as well as in name.

In the second part of the history we treat the University as it grew after the preliminary formative period was over.

Having established a university with a certain sense of unity and self-consciousness, we attempt to bring up to date each of the three original schools, and then proceed to give a brief historical sketch of each school and division which has been added since 1907.

The University of Louisville is the oldest of municipal universities. It had its beginning in two separate institutions, the Louisville Medical Institute and the Collegiate Institute of Louisville, both established by the City Council in 1837. The Collegiate Institute, the name of which was later changed to Louisville College, was short lived. It really passed out of existence before the University was chartered.

The Louisville Medical Institute, on the other hand, presents a picture of steady growth and progress. In April, 1837, the City Council passed resolutions to establish a medical college on a site which should be a college square and which would later contain other college buildings. This square was to be bounded by Chestnut, Magazine, and Eighth and Ninth Streets, and the college was known as the Medical Institute. The medical building was finished in 1839, but the first session of the Medical Institute began in October, 1837 in an improvised hall in the City Workhouse.

In 1846, as the result of a desire on the part of the City Council to unite the two colleges under one head, the Kentucky Legislature granted to the Louisville College and the Louisville Medical Institute a charter as one institution to be called the University of Louisville; and it provided that the Louisville College become the academic department of the University of Louisville. The academic department finally became the Louisville Male High School in 1860. It can in no sense be called a College of Liberal Arts.

Under the same charter of 1846 the Law School was established, graduating its first class of twelve members in 1847. Its first quarters were on the University property referred to above as the college square.

From the year 1860, when the academic department became the Louisville Male High School, until the year 1907, the University consisted of merely the School of Law and the School of Medicine. Officially these Schools were two departments of the University, but for practical purposes they were independent. The popular conception seemed to be that they were two entirely separate schools.

In 1907 the Medical Department of Kentucky University was combined with the University of Louisville's School of Medicine. In the following year the Kentucky School of Medicine, descended from the Medical Department of Transylvania University, and the Louisville Hospital College of Medicine, united with the University of Louisville, and out of this union has grown the present University of Louisville School of Medicine.

In the following year the Law School was reorganized and the faculty substantially increased. At this time the case method of teaching was introduced.

In the year 1907 the community seemed at last ready to support an Arts College. The College of Arts and Sciences was established in the old Silas Miller residence at 119 West Broadway, which had been occupied by the Medical Department of Kentucky University from 1899 to 1910. Now, for the first time, was carried out the original design of the founders of setting up, in addition to the professional schools, departments for the promotion of science, literature, and the liberal arts. Thus we see the beginning of the more adequate fulfillment of the deep purpose of a university. The professional schools had, by their very specialized nature, tended to resist unification. But now that a common background for both schools had been provided by the establishment of a Liberal Arts College, the prospects of a unified, self-conscious university were greatly increased.

Clinical Department at 517 S. 6th St. This picture was taken in January, 1911.

Neville Miller, who served as Mayor of Louisville from 1933 to 1937, was dean of the School of Law until 1933.

Bennett M. Brigman was the first dean of the Speed Scientific School. He died in February, 1938.

The skyline of the city, as seen from the Indiana shore, looked like this when the School of Law was established, in 1846.

In the following pages we shall attempt to bring up to date the history of the various schools of the University of Louisville. We shall not try to present a comprehensive history; it is our purpose to present only that information which seems typical of the development of each school.

The coalition of the schools which formed the present University of Louisville School of Medicine did not immediately produce a satisfactory medical school. The Flexner report on Medical Education in the United States and Canada brought to light grave defects in the University of Louisville School of Medicine. The result was that the School reorganized its faculty, improved its building, and lengthened its session. After these changes had been effected, the School of Medicine secured from the American Medical Association in June 1910 a rating of Class A. Today the school is a member of the Association of American Medical Schools.

Beginning in the year 1914 the medical school held partial control of the professional work of the Louisville City Hospital. In 1922 this control was made complete.

Beginning with the year 1922 the medical school faculty has had full time members as well as part time and clinical ones.

In 1927 the department of Psychiatry was introduced into the School of Medicine. Students of Psychiatry are offered an opportunity for practical training through the connection of the school with the Central State Hospital for the Insane, the City Hospital, and the Louisville Psychological Clinic, which in 1931 became affiliated with the University as the Mental Hygiene Clinic of the psychiatric department.

An important affiliation effected in 1930 was that of the Children's Free Hospital and the Waverley Hills Sanitarium for Tuberculosis with the School of Medicine.

The School of Medicine received a $260,000 annex, which was erected in 1934 through the Public Works Administration.

The Law School had by 1924 put into effect a three-year course with one year of college work required for admission. The curriculum continued to be revised, however, until in 1934 the school had been placed on the accredited list of every national agency whose accreditation is regularly sought by any law school in America. It has been approved by the American Bar Association, the New York State Board of Regents, and the Association of American Law Schools.

The school has had full time professors since 1928. The first full time dean was Neville Miller, who served in this capacity from 1930 to 1933, at which time he resigned to become Mayor of Louisville.

The library which the Law School has today was begun in 1926 and has developed at a rapid pace. The most important contributions have been those made by Louis D. Brandeis, former Justice of the United States Supreme Court. He has presented the library with numerous law books and reports, his most significant contribution being a complete transcription and copy of briefs of all cases coming before the United States Supreme Court since 1924. There are only twelve copies of these briefs in the country.

James Speed, who served as United States Attorney-General under Lincoln and under Johnson from 1864 to 1866, was a professor in the law school from 1856 to 1858 and from 1873 to 1879 and was always a great friend of the school and of its students.

A valuable affiliation of the law school of the University is that which it has with the Legal Aid Society.

The College of Arts and Sciences, the name of which was changed to the College of Liberal Arts in 1924, secured municipal support in 1910. From 1908 to 1922 its dean was John L. Patterson, who served as acting president of the University in the year 1928-29.

The College has undergone periodical reorganizations. Two of its recent developments have been the dividing of the four year course into a Junior College and a Senior College and the establishing of the experimental freshman plan.

The growth of the library of the College has been rapid since 1928. Justice Brandeis has helped immeasurably in this development by his interest and his contribution of important books and documents in almost every department.

In 1918 a dental school was purchased by the University. It had been established in 1887 as a department of the Hospital College of Medicine, which was affiliated with Central University of Richmond, Kentucky. Its franchise had been purchased by a group of medical and dental teachers in 1899, and it had been reorganized under the name of the Louisville College of Dentistry, being associated with Centre College at Danville until its purchase by the University of Louisville.

The School of Dentistry was fortunate in having as director of its research laboratory for a number of years Dr. Theodore Buest, who gained international fame for his research service.

The School of Dentistry has had a Class A rating by the Dental Educational Council since 1923. It is a member of the American Association of Dental Schools.

In 1935 a four year curriculum was put into operation in the School of Dentistry. Since that time the School has given the degree of Doctor of Dental Medicine instead of the former Doctor of Dental Science degree. This changed degree indicates the fact that the school recognizes the close relationship between medicine and dentistry and that it places emphasis on health education. There are only two other dental schools in the United States which grant this degree.

The School of Dentistry operates a free dental clinic for children and a basic cost dental clinic for adults.

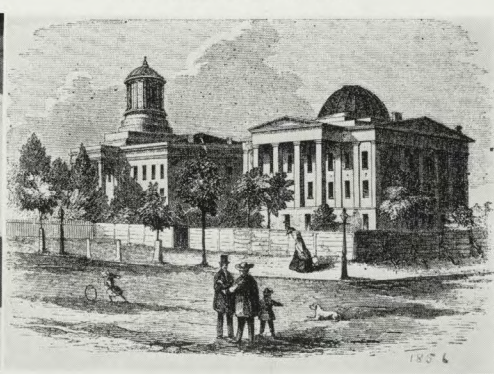

Academic Department of the University, 115 W. Broadway, before removal to Belknap Campus.

Mr. Justice Stanley Reed of the United States Supreme Court laid the cornerstone for the new School of Law building on Belknap Campus, June 6, 1938.

The School of Medicine in 1856. Then it was at Ninth and Chestnut Streets.

The Speed Scientific School was established in 1925 for the study and advancement of the sciences related to engineering. Its opening was made possible by a gift from Mr. W. S. Speed and his sister, Mrs. F. M. Sackett.

The Department of Technical Courses had opened in the Liberal Arts College in 1910. For a number of years Bennett M. Brigman, later to become dean of the Speed School, had been working on plans for an engineering school, and the plan which he developed and which now operates in the school has many outstanding features. One of these is the co-operative system worked out on the quarterly basis. Under this plan the student spends part of his time each year in actual employment in an industry related to his field of study. The school extends the use of laboratory facilities to the city of Louisville in connection with many engineering projects carried out by the municipal administration.

In 1936 the Committee on Engineering Schools of the Engineers' Council for Development gave the Speed Scientific School full accrediting.

In 1932 the School of Music was opened as a successor to the Louisville Conservatory of Music. It operated for three years on an experimental basis with the aid of the Juilliard Foundation of New York City. At the end of this period it was reorganized and removed to the Belknap Campus, where it has since operated as a fully recognized school of the University. It offers four year curricula to persons who meet the entrance requirements, and it provides opportunity for others to take work in the various phases of applied music. In 1936 it was placed on the accredited list of the National Association of Schools of Music.

Throughout the experimental period of the School of Music, Mrs. J. B. Speed co-operated by lending the school the music room of her home for use in the preparatory subjects and applied music. Her music room continues to be an asset of inestimable value to the school.

In 1929 the Graduate School of the University of Louisville was formed by combining the graduate work in the School of Medicine with that which had been offered by the College of Liberal Arts since 1907. Graduate study is now offered by the Liberal Arts College, the School of Medicine, and the Speed Scientific School.

The Graduate Division of Social Administration was opened in 1936 as a unit to offer professional preparation for social workers. Its curriculum was two years in length with the first year on the senior undergraduate level and the second year graduate. In 1937, the division was reorganized, and both years are now on the graduate basis. It grants the degree of Master of Science in Social Administration.

In May, 1937 the division was fully accredited by the American Association of Schools of Social Work. It is one of thirty-eight schools in the United States and four in the South to have this status.

The Division of Adult Education grew out of evening classes which were first offered by the College of Liberal Arts in 1928. As this work grew, the necessity for separate organization increased, and the division was set up in 1935. It gives no degrees. It is not a separate school, but an administrative unit set up to co-ordinate the special work of the Liberal Arts College and the other schools in the University in offering courses primarily for persons devoting most of their time to work outside of University studies.

The Summer Session of the University was founded in 1922. Classes are offered by the College of Liberal Arts, the Graduate School, the School of Music, and the School of Law under the direction of the dean of each school and the Director of the Summer Session.

The Louisville Municipal College for Negroes was opened in 1931 on the grounds and in the buildings formerly used by Simmons University, a Negro institution of higher learning, chartered in 1876. The purchase of the property and the remodeling were made possible partially by the bond issue voted on by the city of Louisville in 1925. Additional funds were donated by the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation and by the Rosenwald Fund.

The curriculum of the Municipal College has developed along much the same lines as that of the College of Liberal Arts. It was first a Junior College, but it later extended its course to four years. In 1936 it was recognized by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as a four-year college with an A rating.

Every school of the University is accredited by the appropriate agency and that the University as a whole is on the approved list of the Association of American Universities.

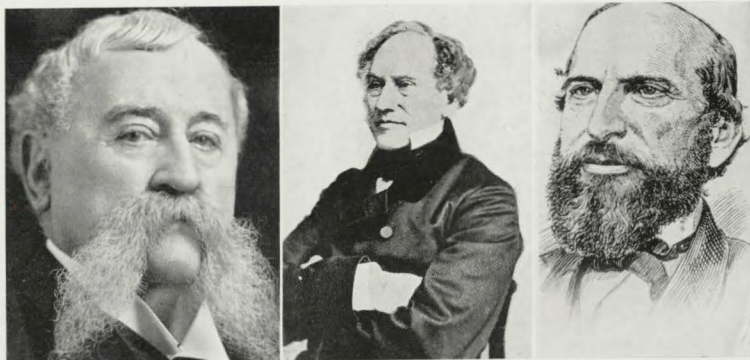

In 1925 the Belknap Campus was purchased by the University. This purchase was the outgrowth of a gift made by the family of W. R. Belknap and of a municipal bond issue of one million dollars effected in that year. The Belknap Campus today is the location of the College of Liberal Arts, the Speed Scientific School, the Speed Museum (erected as the result of a gift made by Mrs. J. B. Speed), the Playhouse, the School of Music, the Graduate Division of Social Administration, the general administrative offices, and the Law School, the latest addition.

In 1936 the Larson Plan of Campus Development was adopted by the Board of Trustees. This plan, deals with the general lines of physical expansion that the University will follow in the next hundred years and sets up the type of architecture which will prevail. It is with a certain humbleness that we contemplate this plan, the model of which has been exhibited in Louisville for the past year. It stands as a symbol of the University of Tomorrow.

Dr. James M. Bodine was dean of the Medical Department of the University of Louisville for forty years.

Dr. Samuel Gross was a professor at the School of Medicine in 1845.

James Speed, Attorney General in the cabinets of Presidents Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson, taught at the University of Louisville School of Law.

SCHOOL OF LAW UNTIL MAY, 1939
312 Armory Place

On May 1, 1939, the School of Law was scheduled to move from its old quarters at 312 Armory Place, to its new building on Belknap Campus.

It leaving the structure which has housed it since 1923, the School departs from an historic neighborhood. In 1841, when Armory Place was known as Center Street, the law firm of Henry Pirtle and James Speed maintained an office on the east side of the street, between Jefferson and what is now Liberty. James Speed, later Attorney General of the United States, was a brother of Joshua Fry Speed, close friend of Abraham Lincoln, who later became president. During a visit to Joshua Fry Speed in 1841, Lincoln paid frequent calls to the office, and read law books. Of his stay in Louisville James Speed, who for a time once taught at the University of Louisville School of Law, remarked:

"I knew Mr. Lincoln when he visited Kentucky, twenty years before he came to the Presidency . . . I saw him daily; he sat in my office, read my books, and talked with me about his life, his reading, his studies, his aspirations . . ."

The School in moving leaves behind it not only the dismal and unimpressive spectacles of the county jail, the court house, and the city hall, but, possibly, the shades of the sixteenth President, his Attorney General, and many other practitioners of the Nineteenth Century bar.

FORD LEE WILKINSON, JR.
Dean

Ford Lee Wilkinson, Jr., the only native Kentuckian now occupying a deanship at the University, saw the light of day for the first time at Elkton, on August 14, 1895. He attended the preparatory department of the Georgia School of Technology in 1911 and 1912, and the University of Georgia in the year 1912-13.

Dean Wilkinson was appointed to the U. S. Naval Academy from the Third Congressional District of Kentucky in 1914, graduating from Annapolis in 1918. He obtained the degree of M.S. from Columbia University in 1925.

He was in active naval service until July, 1927, at which time he resigned, with the rank of lieutenant; since then he has followed civil pursuits. He has acted as sales engineer of the Wilson-Weesner-Wilmington Co. in Nashville, Tenn., chief engineer of the Bureau of Smoke Regulation of Knoxville, Tenn., and research engineer with the Riley Stoker Corp., of Worcester, Mass.

Dean Wilkinson is the co-author of "Air Conditioning," a work published in 1937 by the University of Texas Extension Division.

He was president of the Knoxville Technical Society in 1938, and in the same year was chairman of the Knoxville section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He is a member of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, and Tau Beta Pi.

The Student Council of the College of Liberal Arts is more than a representative body of students; it is the culmination of an attempt on the part of the College to inculcate into the students a sense of civic responsibility necessary to make them worthy members of the community. Through the medium of the Council the student body actively enters into the solving of its own problems; the Council is, therefore, the agency which unites the naturally heterogeneous student body in a common purpose: that of self-government.

In the pursuance of this objective the Student Council renders a wide variety of services both to the students and to the University. Its chief function is the regulation and administration of student activities and University functions. It supervises student organizations and social events sponsored by them. It endeavors to promote better social relations among the students and between the student body and the faculty. It attempts to provide for the needs of the students insofar as this is within its ability.

The purpose of this organization is to regulate student affairs in accordance with the constitution and by-laws of the Council, and to represent the student body in matters of mutual interest to the faculty and administration, and the student body.

The Student Council is composed of 17 members, namely, one representative from each of the four professional societies, i.e., A. I. Ch. E., A. S. C. E., A. I. E. E., and the A. S. M. E.; three representatives from the senior class; two representatives from each section of the junior and sophomore classes; and two representatives from the freshman class. A student, in order to become a member of the Council must have attained a grade average of "C", for the preceding school year, freshmen excepted. The officers of the Council are elected by a majority vote of the Council, and must be members of the senior class.

The Briefing Service of the University of Louisville School of Law was established in 1934 by then Dean Joseph A. McClain, Jr. The purpose of the service is not only to bring the bar and law school into closer contact but also to provide to law students the benefits of clinical work. Each Fall letters are sent to various newspapers in the State requesting the publication of the details of the service and the conditions under which it will be rendered. Conditions placed upon the use of the service are few. The staff asks only that the attorney submitting the brief be licensed to practice in the State of Kentucky and that he submit questions which cannot be answered by materials available in the lawyer's own library. Thus, the nineteen-thousand volume library of the University of Louisville, one of the largest in the South serves a two-fold purpose; on the one hand, to provide the law student a good foundation while in law school, and on the other, to assist that student, through the medium of the briefing service, to prepare actual cases that have arisen.

Sigma Tau, honorary engineering fraternity, was founded February 24, 1904, at the University of Nebraska. The motive of the founders was a desire to be of service to engineering education in the institution where the fraternity was first established.

In determining the basis of eligibility to membership in the fraternity, those qualities that best give promise of a successful career were selected. They are as follows:

1. Scholarship, or quality of technical training. Membership is restricted to the upper one-third of the junior and senior classes of recognized engineering colleges.
2. Practicality, or judgment.
3. Sociability, or attitude toward others.

In the years immediately following the fraternity's establishment, national expansion was discouraged. These years were spent in strengthening Alpha Chapter, only two new chapters being installed. In 1912, the first National Council was elected, and since that time the history of the fraternity has been one of constant expansion. There are now 23 chapters and five alumni associations, with wide geographic distribution, the total membership at present nearing 8,000.

At the National Conclave of 1914, provision was made for a national publication, the "Pyramid."

Omicron Chapter was installed Dec. 21, 1935, taking over active members and alumni of Sigma Omicron, a local organization formed in 1929 and similar to Sigma Tau. It stimulates scholarship in several ways: by making membership in Sigma Tau a sought-for goal; by giving prizes for high scholarship; by offering free tutoring to freshmen, something that has aroused much interest among the other chapters.

Omicron was represented by six members at the National Conclave held at Boulder, Colorado, in the Fall of 1938.

Alpha Gamma Chapter of Theta Chi Delta was chartered Nov. 14, 1934, on the University of Louisville Campus. This fraternity is a purely honorary chemical organization open only to chemical majors and chemical engineers who have completed three terms of chemistry with a minimum 2.00 standing and who have a minimum 1.50 standing in other work, excluding chemistry. The aims of the fraternity are: To foster the interest of chemistry on the campus and elsewhere; to aid its members to maintain their standings; and to help other students with their chemical work in any way possible.

Sigma Alpha, the honorary pre-medical fraternity, was founded by Dr. Homberger and a group of pre-medical students in 1931. The requirements for this organization are: For Sophomores, a 2.00 standing or better, high character, and leadership. For Juniors, the character and leadership requirements are the same, but they must have at least a 1.8 standing for two years. Before an eligible student may become a member he must have the faculty approval and be accepted by a unanimous vote of the membership.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers is the national organization representing the electrical engineering profession, and now has a membership of more than 16,000, having been founded in 1884 and incorporated in 1896. The objects of the Institute are the advancement of the theory and practice of electrical engineering and of the allied arts and sciences, and the maintenance of a high professional standing among its members. The Institute has been largely responsible for the progress that has taken place in the electrical field during the last fifty years, and has been very important in the advancement of the interests of the members and of the entire engineering profession.

Student Branches are organizations of students which have been established in institutions of learning by faculty members who are members of the Institute. The University of Louisville Branch is one of 120 such branches throughout the country and was established in 1928 with 29 members.

Each year a conference of all the Southern District Student Branches is held at one of the engineering schools in this district. During the past school year a joint convention of the Southern District Student Branches and the Southern District A. I. E. E. was held in Miami, Florida, under the auspices of the University of Florida. Chairman Bryan of the U. of L. Branch presented a paper prepared by himself and D. K. McComas entitled, "The Iconoscope, the Television Camera." In addition to Bryan and McComas the convention was attended by Counselor Fife, and members Williams and Wirpio. On the return trip the group inspected Wheeler and Wilson Dams on the Tennessee River.

During the year, meetings have been held approximately once a month. Some of the meetings featured student speakers, while others consisted of inspection trips. Trips were made to the Hydro and Waterside Stations of the Louisville Gas & Electric Co., to the transmitting station of WHAS near Eastwood, and to the Ken-Rad factory at Owensboro, Kentucky, where radio tubes and incandescent lamps are manufactured.

"The Intrados," the University of Louisville (Speed Scientific School) Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers, was organized, first as an independent society, on December 18, 1928. In April of 1938 "The Intrados" became affiliated with the American Society, which is the oldest National Engineering Society in the United States, having been instituted in 1852. The Society has 15,459 members in 63 local sections and 5,467 student members in 119 Student Chapters throughout the country.

The University of Louisville Student Branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers had its beginning in the Fall of 1925, when the Chemical Engineering Society of Speed Scientific School was organized at the suggestion of Dr. R. C. Ernst, the present councilor. At that time the membership totaled twelve, and this small group formed the pioneering nucleus of what is now a membership of eighty-six. Growth was steady from the first, and when application was made for a Student Branch of the A. I. Ch. E. late in 1933, the membership had risen to twenty-five, and the activities and prominence of the organization had increased markedly. The installation of the Chapter was early in 1934.

The University of Louisville Student Branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers was founded at Speed Scientific School in the year 1927. It is one of 115 student branches functioning in 45 state, Puerto Rico, and Canada. Total enrollment this year stands at 4,000 student members.

The principal objects of the organization are:

1. To add to the students' acquaintance with the practical side of the field of Mechanical Engineering.
2. To furnish the student the journal of the National Society and to keep him in touch with engineering progress, by making the libraries of student branch colleges depositories of the National Society.
3. To develop the students' initiative and ability to speak in public, and to familiarize them with the parliamentary procedure and organization of learned societies.
4. To enable the student to establish fraternal contact with his fellow students in engineering, and to meet men engaged in the active practice of mechanical engineering.
5. To permit the student to attend meetings of Student Members, and also the meetings of the National Society, and of its local senior sections and professional divisions.

The school year programme of the branch provides for regular meetings at least once a month, and joint meetings with other college branches in this locality. Numerous inspection trips are held during the year, which include visits to various industrial plants both within the city and outside the city. Each year, delegates of this branch attend the Southern Section Conference, held in a southern city.

NATIONAL MEDICAL FRATERNITY

ALPHA ALPHA CHAPTER

National Organization Founded at University of Vermont, 1889

Established at the University of Louisville, 1894

The national organization had its inception in two fraternities, each known as Phi Chi, one of which was established at the University of Louisville in 1894, and the other at the University of Vermont in 1889. These two existed independently of, and unknown to, each other, until they were combined into a national medical fraternity in 1901. For this reason the University of Vermont chapter is known as Alpha Chapter, while that of the University of Louisville is known as Alpha Alpha.

L CLUB

The "L" Club was formed some years ago under the leadership of Joe Steiger. Shortly after his death the "L" Club ceased to be and passed out of the picture. During the years '33, '34 and '35, there were several attempts to re-establish this athletic group, but it was not until the coming of Laurie Apitz that the Club was reorganized and a constitution framed. Under the leadership of Dick Panther the "L" Club became one of the better known campus groups and found a firm footing in the campus activities and life.

The "L" Club is primarily interested in athletics of the University for the present and for the future. Among the most noteworthy activities was the buffet supper held during the past baseball season to which some eighty High School Seniors were invited to attend. This was the first attempt of the athletic group to bring the high school athletes to the University Campus.

One of the more recent activities that the "L" Club has acquired is that of enforcing the Freshman cap-wearing. This was done with much enthusiasm and the "L" stood foremost on the campus as inflictors of punishment and enforcement. Also the "L" Club was asked to police the campus and to prevent any injurious riots while the Frosh-Soph war was in progress. The members handled this very well and as a result there were no casualties.

"The pledge of the College of Cardinals shall be service to the University."

The College of Cardinals is a secret honor society, composed of campus leaders, each of whom has proved his ability as a leader, and has held honor in some major college activity. In addition to the student members, who must be in the senior college, there are faculty participants, but these, too, are chosen by the body of the organization, unanimously, and judged by their interest in college activity. They may not exert their influence upon student members by using their faculty prestige; they may not number more than one-third of the group, and they are in all ways on an equal basis with the students.

Membership in the College of Cardinals is secret. The names of the Cardinals are not revealed while they remain with the group, but only upon graduation is the fact of their participation in the organization made public, after which, they become Cardinals Emeriti.

The purpose of the College of Cardinals is the promotion of a healthy college community spirit, to be brought about through the mutual understanding of groups and individuals. To effect this purpose, the acknowledged leaders of the various major activities are brought together, in a unified attempt to solve the social problems found in the University and on the campus.

With a small membership, to insure every voice being heard before decisions are made, the organization also insists on this limited size in order to maintain high quality of candidates elected. Standards, even of eligibility, are high, yet all those eligible are not elected—only the best!

Election to the College of Cardinals is considered the highest honor a man in the college can attain.

The Pallas Club is a Senior honorary organization for women. It was founded in 1931 to give recognition to women outstanding in scholastic achievement and campus leadership. Members are elected at the close of the Junior year.

The organization attempts to render service to the University in every way possible. On November 29, 1938, it sponsored the first annual All-University tag sale for the purpose of supplementing the Joseph Steiger Memorial Student Loan Fund.

The Pallas Club is interested in helping to bridge the gap between high school and college life by rendering counselling service to Seniors in the local Girls' High Schools.

Each year the club presents an award to the Freshman woman who best exemplifies the ideals for which the organization stands.

The University of Louisville Women's League was founded in December, 1908. Its purpose is to regulate all matters pertaining to the student life of its women members which do not fall under the jurisdiction of the faculty and to bring about greater unity and mutual helpfulness among the women of the University.

All women students of the University who pay required dues are active members and eligible to vote and to hold office.

The organization is governed by a council consisting of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer who are elected each Spring by active members and one representative from each of the undergraduate classes and a representative from each of the following organizations: Y.W.C.A., W.A.A., Panhellenic Association, the Home Economics Club, social organizations, and the Pallas Club.

On the campus the Women's League establishes and strengthens traditions and customs serving to solidify campus life. One project is freshman orientation and a tea for entering freshmen women. The organization sponsors a Vice-Versa Dance the proceeds from which go to furnishing the Womans' Building and to make it a more presentable place for U. of L. Co-Eds. The organization also attempts to improve student-faculty relationship by giving an annual tea for the faculty. It holds luncheons, at which speakers discuss matters of interest, and an annual banquet each Spring, at which time all honors to be won by co-eds for the following year are announced.

The Women's League is grateful to Dean Hilda Threlkeld, whose understanding and co-operation as an adviser have been invaluable.

The primary purpose of the Women's Athletic Association is organizing and promoting women's athletics on the campus. This organization is governed by a cabinet composed of twelve girls—six holding positions of president, vice-president, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, treasurer and publicity chairman, and six being the heads of hockey, basketball, volleyball, tennis, ping pong, swimming and soft ball teams. At the beginning of the Fall term, this administrative cabinet meets and draws up an athletic and social schedule for the whole year.

For participation in these sports, girls are given points which accumulate until there is a total of 500. Then a seal is awarded, and when 1000 points are earned, an "L" sweater is given.

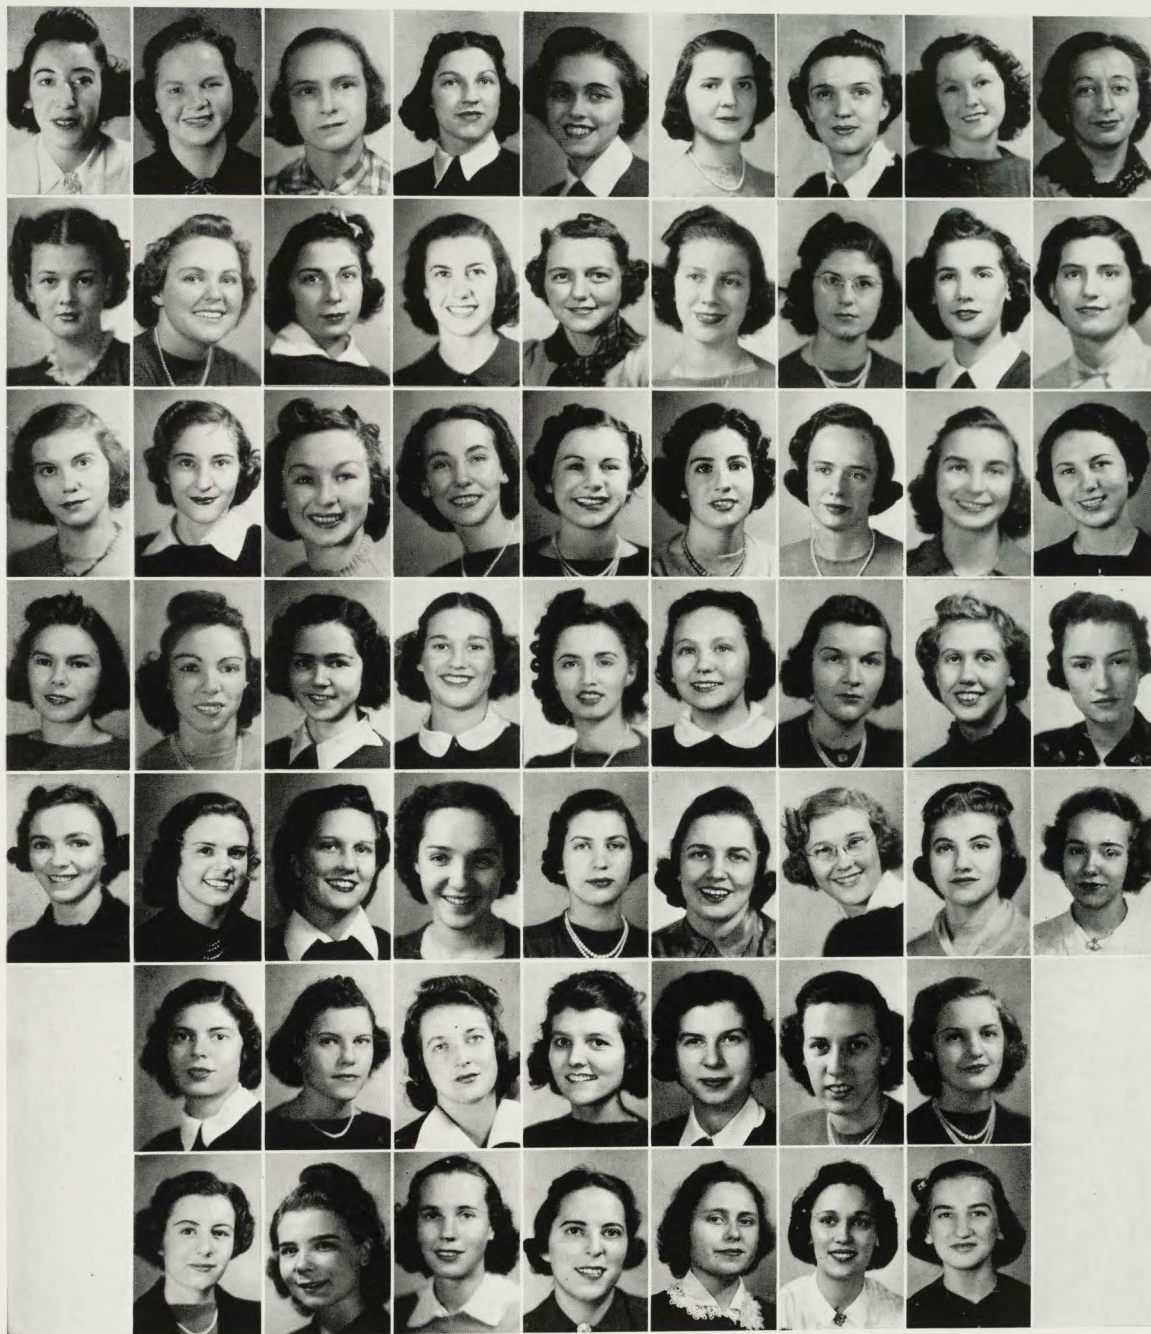

Our social programme is headed by our annual "Tennis Ball," and is followed up by mass meetings, teas, hikes, hayrides, swimming parties, skating parties, etc. The proceeds of this annual "Tennis Ball" go into a fund for tennis courts which the organization hopes to be able to build in the near future.

Every woman on the campus is eligible for membership, which can be obtained by paying 50 cents dues a year. This membership entitles a girl to participate in the W. A. A. athletic and social programmes.

The Chemistry Club is the oldest departmental club of the University of Louisville. It was founded by Dr. A. W. Homberger when he came to the University twenty-one years ago. The Club is open to all students interested in chemistry. At its bi-weekly meetings, speakers on chemical subjects are presented. It thus strives to give the students a picture of the opportunities open in the field and of the developments that are taking place.

BIOLOGY CLUB

The Biology Club was founded as a journal club in 1929. Formerly restricted to advanced students in biology, the Club is now open to anyone interested in biology. Membership dues are twenty-five cents for each semester. Every other Thursday the Club has a luncheon meeting at 12:30; at these meetings the Club sponsors speakers connected with fields in which the biology students are interested. They discuss modern discoveries, problems, and interests in such biological fields as conservation of wild life, exploration, biological research, and applied biology, and the related professions of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, and bio-chemistry.

The yearly programme of the Club consists of the regular luncheon meetings, two banquets—one in the Fall and the other in the Spring,—occasional parties, dances, and other activities when they can be added conveniently to the school programme.

Among the achievements of the Biology Club may be listed its annual subscription for three biological magazines for the biology library, a glass-enclosed bulletin board for the Biology Building, and its contribution to the furnishing of the League Room. The Club has also, through its own resources, purchased dishes, tablecloths, and a radio. Last year the Club promoted and financed the Micro-Vivarium, a micro-projection demonstration of minute organisms.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

Dunn Smith Goodman Gordon Workman Green Young Pitt

The Mathematics Club was formed in 1929 to create interest in and discuss various phases of mathematics, and to foster sociability among the members of the department. Its membership is restricted to students enrolled in mathematics classes of sophomore rank or above, who have, during a pledge period, shown interest in and co-operated with the activities of the organization.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

Lubbers Kintner Young

The International Relations Club was founded in 1934 as an outgrowth of the International Relations Class. It is designed to give objective study to current matters of international interest; it takes no sides, but is conducted on the principle that controversial issues must be viewed dispassionately, and all angles considered. The University of Louisville club is affiliated with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

To effectuate this policy, the club has brought to the campus a number of prominent speakers of national renown, including Norman Thomas and Aline O'Brien.

Enrolled in the University of Louisville are approximately 300 Baptist students who for the most part are local students. These constitute the Baptist Student Union on the University of Louisville Campus. We are a part of the greater movement throughout the Southland representing 17 States, and have eight officers in our local Union. There are B. S. U.'s in practically all of the colleges over the State and the work is supervised by a State secretary.

Dr. D. Swan Haworth of the Fourth Avenue Baptist Church is the pastor adviser.

"The Y. W. C. A. is a fellowship of women students and faculty who are seeking a full and creative life for themselves and other people.

"We, the members of the Young Women's Christian Association, unite in the desire to realize a full and creative life.

"We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and to follow Him."

This statement was adopted by the national Y. W. C. A. in 1928 and we seek to uphold its purpose in our local Y. W. C. A. as nearly as possible.

This year our aim was the realization and the fulfillment of the Christian aspect of the Y. W. C. A. We believe that Christianity is a vital and workable way of life and we seek to prove it by our lives.

This year our greatest achievement has been the sponsoring of a Bible Class which meets weekly under Mrs. E. S. Allen.

The primary function of the Christian Association is "to discover through study and insight the values inherent in religion and to make them effective in all our human relationships."

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman Club movement was begun at the University of Pennsylvania in 1893. Since that time over two hundred clubs have been founded, all of which are members of the Newman Club Federation.

The University of Louisville Chapter was founded in 1937, the Rev. Charles C. Boldrick acting as chaplain.

John Boland was the Club's first president and William A. Hammill served as president during 1938.

The club has a threefold programme, the religious, social and intellectual.

Membership is open to all Catholics attending the University of Louisville. At the present time it numbers among its members, students from Speed School, Music School, Liberal Arts College, Graduate School, and the Division of Adult Education, and in May, will also include Law School students.

During the past year, the Club has sponsored three Communion breakfasts, a public lecture, two parties, a dance, a Summer picnic and an annual banquet. A church history class was offered and weekly Lenten sermons were given. The custom of having a Mass of the Holy Ghost sung at the beginning of each semester was also begun.

DRAMA

THE PLAYHOUSE
BELKNAP CAMPUS

The University of Louisville Players was founded in 1911 by Dr. John L. Patterson, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, who wanted to present drama to his students in the acted form. The U. of L. Players have produced many one-act plays and one three-act play each year. In 1913, Boyd Martin was invited to direct the Players, he accepted and has been their director for twenty-five years. In that time he has introduced many college students to the drama by letting them taste the glamor, splendor, and romance of the theatre — as well as the thrill of success attained through back-breaking work and loyal co-operation.

How they saved enough to rent a small second-story room at 119 West Broadway for an auditorium seating 202 people; how they put on "big" productions at grand old Macauley's Theatre; how they gave world premieres of new plays; how in 1925 they came into their own Playhouse with its last word in theatrical equipment; how they built up a patron list among the lovers of the theatre in Louisville; how they sponsored a Little Country Theatre at the State Fair in 1923; how they delighted Louisville for one whole week with "Romeo and Juliet" in 1927 and "Garden of Memories" in 1934, and transcended mere acting in those plays; how they produced everything from breeziest farce to deepest tragedy; how they revived the old melodrama "Two Orphans" in 1937 — all these add up to a history to which the Players may truly point with pride.

This season of 1938-39, being their Silver Anniversary, was ushered in by the Players on the silver programmes of their first play of the season,

DRAMA

"A Pair of Spectacles." This antique piece presented Duncan King and Bob Fitzpatrick as brothers of contrasting characters, and Jane Krieger and Martha Love Johnson as two lovelies of the Gay Nineties. The second play was a "ghost story in three acts" "A Murder has Been Arranged," in which Charles Hough as the restless victim and Stanley McGee as the psychopathic murderer sent the audience silently shivering from the Playhouse. Dolly Gordon and Marcus Burke afforded much needed comedy relief. The next play of the season was "Four Walls." Ernie Abramson played the role of an idealistic boy whose conscience sends him back to prison and Fred Jones was the smooth detective that haunted him. Among others in the supporting cast were Goldie Dashoff and M. J. Schwartz. For their fourth play of the season and ninety-ninth major production the Players are planning the operetta, "The Two Bouquets."

The aim of the U. of L. Players is to provide performances of distinctive dramas not likely to appear upon the professional stage, to develop the acting ability of the members, and to respond to a growing demand for the best dramatic literature of all times and languages. All students of the drama in any of its phases — acting, directing, playwriting, set building and lighting, and ticket-selling — are associate members of the Players. Upon completion of a certain amount of work anyone may become a member of the players with voting privileges. The Lions' Club Dramatic Award and the Players' Bauble are awards made each year for outstanding work. Other activities of the Players include one-act plays, the Christmas Convocation which last year consisted of an original play by John Lubbers and Bernard Peck, and the annual Mardi Gras Masque Ball held this year on Feb. 21.

ATHLETICS

Head football coach Laurie Apitz, who came to the University on September 1, 1936 from the College of The Pacific, was assisted in his grid tutoring during the '38 season by Freddie Koster, young former student.

Apitz handled the unfortunate netters unaided, while his genial colleague, "Jolly John" Heldman primed the more successful yearlings both on the hardwood and football field. Heldman, who was aided in his work with the pledge footballers by graduate student Sid Brownstein, also sponsored the U. of L. baseball nine which copped the K.I.A.C. championship during the '38 schedule.

As we go to press Redbird fans are viewing a promising group of diamond potentialities and, for the first time on record, spectators have two outfits to watch. Reversion to an old S.I.A.A. ruling has brought Freshman baseball to the campus.

SCHLOEMER

GRAHAM

Succeeding the flyweight leader, Alex Davidson, 1938 football captain, are co-captains Lou Zimlich and Fred Schloemer. Lou received nation-wide recognition immediately after the season when a group of experts chose him as left end on the "Little All-America" team.

Schloemer, who performed opposite Alex at the other sentry post during the past year, was named on the All-State eleven for the second straight year and reputedly, "played a good majority of time in the opposition's backfield throughout the series of '38 contests.

Most powerful offensive squadman of the retiring lads was Jack Graham, 21 year old, 174-pound half-back and product of duPont Manual High School. Jack is seen above pointing at the cup bearing his name for good service. He was termed most valuable.

VARSIITY FOOTBALL

WAYNE OF DETROIT IS DEFEATED 12-14

With 148-pound captain Alex Davidson and Little All-American Lou Zimlich heading the defensive department and Jack "Jocko the Bulldog" Graham operating the biggest offensive guns, the University of Louisville Cardinals chalked up a fairly successful football season last year when they made their lone two victories come in battles they were expected to lose.

The fact that they fell victim in six other tests has been disregarded in part by Campus followers as they remember the sterling work which the boys exhibited in the Wayne upset and Centre classic. Of the completely unsubsidized outfit, especially do we praise the four graduating squadmen who contributed immensely to the team's efficacy as a unit. Alex Davidson, Harold Rose, Jack Graham and Ed Edelhauser become stalwarts of the past, whereas Charley Hampton, Don McKay, Fred Schloemer, Lou Zimlich, Gene Langan, Dick Oldham, Barney Smith, Jim Caufield, Bill Watts, Harold Turner and Stan Scharre remain intact for future wars.

The opening '38 test, which took the Cards to Cincinnati, featured the sterling play of "Little Alex" and Fred Schloemer who functioned at the sentry posts. Although the Caravan returned on the short end of a 19-0 count, the game was well played considering the conditions entertained. A partial crowd, covering but a small part of the 30,000 capacity stadium, only tended to make the home towners feel like so many pins in a haystack. It was a typical opening game, with neither team showing any great deal of promise.

The Wayne University outfit, next foe of the Redbirds, came to town with a line averaging 188 pounds and a backfield set at 185, but Laurie Apitz' straight football-playing eleven turned on a glorious reversal of the form displayed at Cincy and took the highly touted Detroitians into camp, 14-12. Rose and Graham touchdowned for the Cardinals and the faithful toe of Fred Schloemer provided the margin of victory via two perfectly placed kicks. A. P. writer Williamson spotted the locals forty points prior to game time and afterwards termed the fray one of America's four greatest upsets of the week as a post mortem.

Following the smoothly executed win over Wayne, there came what experts termed, "the calm after the storm" and U. of L. fell before an inferior St. Joseph host team, 0-2. Coach Apitz attributed the loss to five fumbles and a 15 yards holding penalty which, when consummated, cost his boys 175 yards of precious turf. The change of water and nerve wracking bus trip did not add to the team's effectiveness.

Returning to the Maxwell Field gridiron for the second home game of the year, the Caravan disappointed an expectant Louisville public when it allowed a not-so-hot Georgetown eleven to hand it loss number three, 6-0. Sparked by the work of "Iron Man" Lou Zimlich, the Redbirds outplayed the invaders in every department except that one most valuable on the record books: that of scoring. Lou personally accounted for fifty-odd yards of the large amount which G'town lost.

The Apitzmen received their fourth loss a week later, when the Transylvania Pioneers lucked out their first win of the season, 13-7. This game was a heart-breaking outcome for the injury-riddled Cards, as they scored two touchdowns that were called back because of the Collegiate quick whistle ruling. In each instance, the ball carrier was claimed under tackle before completing his pay dirt jaunt. Speedy Harold Turner went over for the touchdown and red-thatched Fred Schloemer kept his slate clean by converting his third straight point after touchdown placement. Transylvania was the third successive eleven to acquire its first win at the Cardinals' expense.

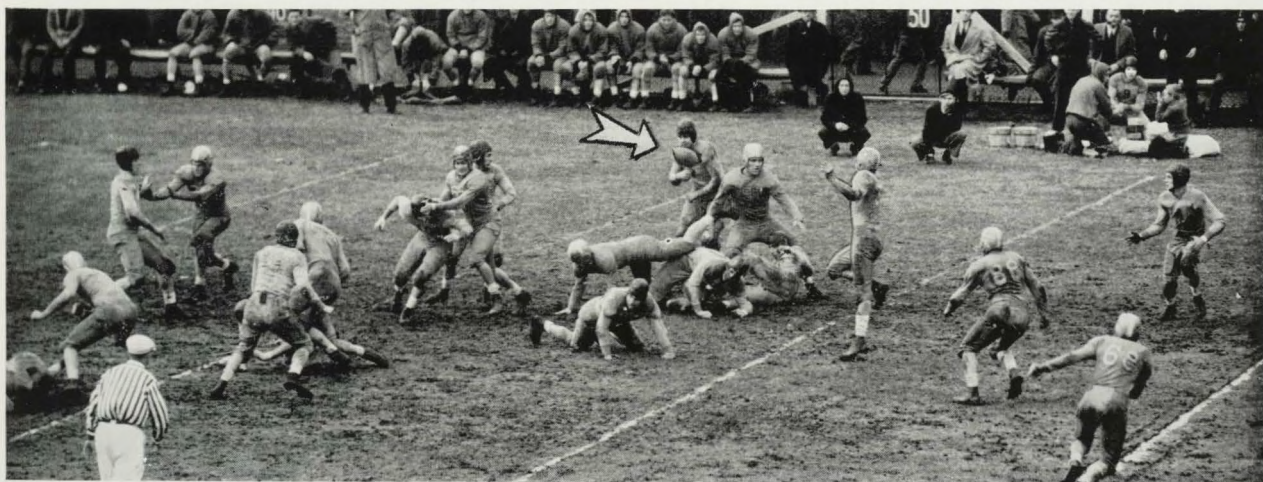

Playing the season's third out-of-town game, U. of L. slipped and slid through a virtual quagmire to its second and final win, tripping a rough and tough Evansville eleven, 6-0. A thirty-five yard heave, Langan to Zimlich, with the latter dragging three opponents into the end zone provided for the score.

A gaily decorated P.E.P. motorcade made a University cheering section in Hanover possible, but the unfortunate Redbirds failed to capitalize on their yardage gain superiority and went down before the "Hilltoppers," 13-7. Graham looked like a champ as he ripped both sides of the hoosier line with powerful spinners and reverses to score both of the touchdowns. Schloemer kicked the extra point as usual.

Needless to say, the entire squad deserves credit for the commendable showing made against the high-flying Centre Colonels. In the line, from Zimlich at one end to Caulfield at the other, there was not a single Louisvillian who did not play over his head. The backs: Graham, Leahy, D. McKay, Langan and all of the rest showed everyone present that might does not necessarily mean right. Centre won, 14-0, but that score is an improvement over the year before, and this Fall's outcome could easily be an improvement over that.

ALEX DAVIDSON, Captain

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

JIMMY ROSENFELD

The University of Louisville Freshman football team, captained by "Jimmy" Rosenfield and coached by "Honest" John Heldman, chalked up a highly commendable season last year when they climaxed a three wins, one loss and one tie record by knotting the score in the Centre pledge battle, 0-0.

Included on the squad, often termed the most formidable yearling outfit Louisville has had in years, were such former high school luminaries as Tony Sgroi, Jimmy Rosenfield, Charles Isenberg, Warren Annear, Goodman Goldberg, Lewis Schloemer, Tom Coleman, Howard Johnson, Henry Kurk, Herbert Moore, Bob Pearce, David Ryan, Joe Stone and Bob White. Aside from these, the following were awarded numerals for their praiseworthy efforts: Julius Blankenship, Charles Bonkofsky, Walter Boyle, Harry Funk, Harry Jenkins, Foster Lilly, John McClain, Clure Mosher and Irwin Stump.

Sgroi, likeable plunging half-back and product of the St. Xavier Prep School, was by far the most promising member of the eleven but a broken leg, suffered in the K.M.I. win, compelled him to inactiveness for the remainder of the schedule. Captain Rosenfield was awarded a silver cup by the Alumni Association for his all around value to the team. Also compensated for their tireless work were Lewis Schloemer and Tommy Coleman, who received cups as the best blocker and most improved player, respectively.

At the first annual football banquet held last February in the Gymnasium, the letter-winners named Lou Zimlich and Fred Schloemer as co-captains for the year 1939. Also honored at the dinner, which was initiated under the direction of the new P.E.P. organization, were Jack Graham and Tommy Leahy who received trophies for their all around ability and blocking effectiveness, respectively.

BASEBALL

Baseball coach John Heldman, the jolly gentleman who virtually "made" hitters out of half of his men and then tutored them to a K.I.A.C. championship last year, prepared to defend the school's title nobly this April, when ten monogram earners answered his initial Spring practice call.

Heldman expressed supreme confidence in the boys back, and when he sent them into the opening tilt with Oberlin College, his alma mater, local diamond fans were expecting merely the first in a long string of '39 wins.

Heading the list of veterans was ace moundsman Ted Zimney, whose zip and zowie in the box made him the Cards probable starter for three previous years. Ted, who gained his prep school education in Massachusetts, received widespread fame for his likeable cockiness and brilliant color bearing on the diamond.

Jim Estes and Bobby Ayres, third sacker and short stop, respectively, were entering their third schedule, whereas the following had been honored with letters at least once: Harold Turner, catcher; Jim Ogden, outfielder of yesteryear who was converted into a first baseman; Fred Elliston, second baseman; Walt Slater, left fielder; Hayes Holmes, "middleman," and Joe Sheeley, right fielder. George Crutcher, a pitcher with experience, appeared to have everything it takes and was slated for much duty.

Vacating niches on the starting line-up via graduation, etc., were Wakie Wright, left fielder; Cooper Hampton, center fielder who turned professional; Si Monen, first baseman; and Bill Black, alternate catcher.

A squad of 21 first year men also sharpened their spikes, preparing to initiate baseball into the University as a Freshman sport. Among the more prominent plebes were: Bob King, former Manualite on the hardwood and diamond; Charles Roberts, backstop also from Manual; Lee Wedekind, outfielder from Male; and Walter "Bud" Boyle, one-time Male infielder. The outfit was coached by John Stultz, and planned tilts with Male, Manual and St. X., along with other prep schools in this vicinity.

VARSIITY BASKETBALL

The University basketball representatives of coach Apitz suffered the most embarrassing season of a decade during the '38-'39 play, despite the impressive efforts of their All-State Captain, Dick Panther. Dick climaxed four years of Cardinal athletic service in the Western game of February 24, 1939, and received widespread notice for his superlative defensive work and long shot talent.

Two victories in eighteen starts was the best that the hard fighting group could manage, and consequently, the less said about the season, the better. At the close of the rather distasteful year, letter winners in the sport selected Elwyn Horine and Robert "Cup" Weber to co-captain the five during '39-'40.

The roster of the retiring team follows: Captain Dick Panther, Robert "Monk" Meyer, Elwyn Horine, Robert "Cup" Weber, Ben Reid, Gavin Morris, Joe Sheeley, Walt Slater, Joe Roney, Jack Creamer, Dick Oldham, Charley Hampton, and manager Jimmy Cummings.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

The Freshman basketball team of 1938-39 salvaged much of the University hardwood glory by winning ten tilts during the course of its fifteen game schedule. The squad was tutored by varsity baseball head, "Honest" John Heldman, and co-captained by Lanham "Si" Frazier and Bob King.

INTRAMURALS

Headed by Maurice Royalty, former ace athlete at Centre College, Med. School's Phi Chi basketball team outlasted the Professional League's best fives and then went ahead to their third straight intramural halo by thrashing all comers in the quick death All-University play-off.

The Speed School "Deepes," sparked in their play by Ira Banta and little Bobby Ayres won the campus championship going away, but fell before the bigger and more experienced downtowners, 41-14.

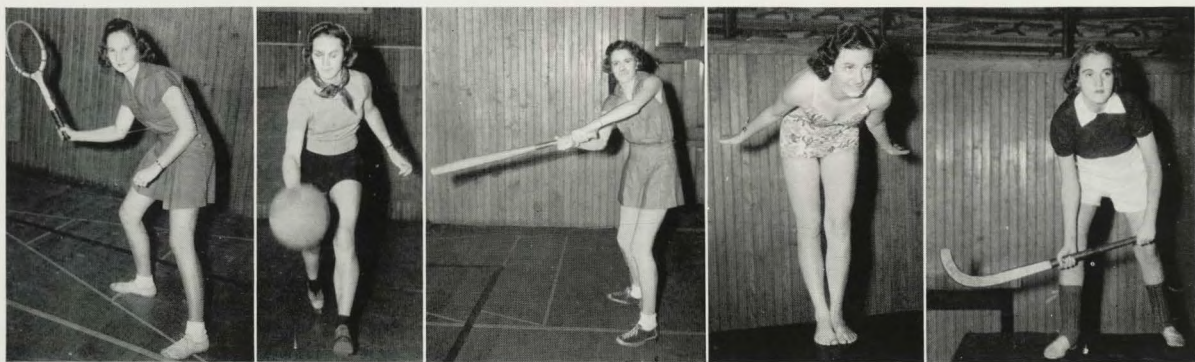

Foul shooting, only other mural reportable as we go to press, saw ninety-odd contestants follow grid student manager Jimmy Cummings to the wire. Jimmy netted seventy-five tosses out of his bare one-hundred trys, and defeated W. H. Martin, his closest rival, by thirteen flips.

Under the able supervision of Mrs. Mary Shearer, women's intra-murals enjoyed one of the most active years on record during '38-'39. Activities included "between the classes" competition in volleyball, ping-pong, basketball and softball; and city-wide representation through two hockey teams.

The Pi Phi basketball team virtually ran wild in the net loop, sweeping their slate with six wins and no losses. Little Dorothy Sandidge and shapely Stacey Hall counted best for the winners.

In the volleyball circuit, however, there was a slight reversal of form. The Zeta Tau Alpha nine, with Ruth Caven leading the attack, did themselves equally proud by copping all tilts for an eight wins against no losses first place record.

Immediately after the basketball season, Mrs. Shearer and thirteen girl representatives of the University visited Cincinnati where they joined in the annual fun-week. The trip, designed to promote a general feeling of good will among colleges in this locality, resulted in a small amount of intracollegiate competition in all sports for the various schools. To say the least, the locals enjoyed their share of success.

UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA

In the school year of 1928-29, the University Orchestra was organized by E. J. Wotawa as one of the units of musical activity in conjunction with the newly instituted department of music in the College of Liberal Arts. It grew from a small group to Symphonic proportions. In 1933, after the School of Music was added to the University, membership of the orchestra was increased to 85 by the addition of professional musicians, and an elaborate concert series was conducted in the Memorial Auditorium. During this time Mr. Wotawa turned the orchestra to H. Arthur Brown who as a representative of the Juilliard Foundation served as guest conductor for 3 years.

Following Mr. Brown's departure, Mr. Wotawa resumed conductorship of the orchestra. Less emphasis is now being placed on the orchestra than heretofore as there are two major orchestras in the city whose memberships are made up largely of University students and graduates. The activities of this year's orchestra are confined largely to laboratory work whereby student soloists, conductors, arrangers, and composers have an opportunity for practical work.

UNIVERSITY BAND

The present University Band was organized by E. J. Wotawa in the school year of 1928-29, although several attempts had been made previous to that to make the band a permanent organization. In 1932, with the opening of the School of Music, the Band was turned over to the leadership of William A. Taylor, who served in that capacity for one year, following which the leadership of the band was assumed by James R. Elliott, who conducted the Band for a period of two years. In 1936, A. F. Marzian was engaged to take charge of the Band. After two years, ill health forced him to give up the work, and Ernest E. Lyon was appointed his successor. Mr. Lyon is a graduate of Marshall College and Eastman School of Music. After a rather varied career the band has taken on new life this year, and has taken an active part in parades, concerts, convocations and football games. For the past two years, the University Band has been designated as the official Kentucky Derby Band. For this occasion it has been augmented, through the co-operation of American Federation of Musicians and the efforts of former members. Mr. Lyon announces elaborate plans for the balance of the season this year; these plans include formal concerts in The Playhouse in conjunction with the University Chorus and a series of Twilight Campus Concerts. With continued growth and added equipment the Band bids fair to become one of the leading bands in the state.

UNIVERSITY CHORUS

Like the orchestra the University Chorus was organized in the school year 1928, by J. E. Wotawa. By 1932, the chorus attained a membership of 120 picked voices and was featured in annual spring concerts given in the Memorial Auditorium. With the opening of the School of Music in 1932, the chorus was directed by Mr. Jacques Jolas, who served as Dean of the School of Music representing the Juilliard Foundation for a period of 3 years, after which Mr. Wotawa resumed the directorship. The chorus has appeared several times in The Playhouse; it participated in the production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury," conducted by Mr. J. Bertram Harmon. A year ago the highlight of its career was a performance of Beethoven's "Choral Phantasie." This year's activities included an appearance in The Playhouse with the annual "Variety Show," University broadcast programmes and an appearance with the band.

GERMAN CHORUS

The German Chorus was organized in 1934, by Leonard Koester. Each year since then it has sung over the radio (WHAS) and before various groups in the City of Louisville, including Male High School, Warren Memorial Church, etc.

Under the directorship of Mrs. Louise Dixon Boggs, the German Chorus has become known as one of the finest singing groups in the State.

Madame Cora Sabin has taken an active interest in the Chorus by preparing soloists.

The faculty sponsor is Leonard Koester.

MALE QUARTET

In recent years Male Quartets appear to have been relegated into the background because of the over-emphasis of so-called swing combinations; but interest in this delightful form of group singing has been eminently revived by the "Cardinal Four", consisting of William Irmscher, first tenor, Isaac Reid, second tenor, Morris Tenenbaum, baritone and Joseph Roney, bass. The quartet made its initial bow to the Campus at the annual Variety Show given in The Playhouse last fall, at which time they scored immediate success. Since then they have appeared on radio broadcasts and before various organizations in the city.

STRING ENSEMBLE

Following the opening of the School of Music, an important unit was added to the list of musical organizations within the University. This was the University String Ensemble, organized in 1933, by Jacques Jolas, then dean. The purpose of this group was to foster an interest in chamber music and to give the public an opportunity to hear some of the works composed for string groups in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries, as well as modern compositions. At the conclusion of the Julliard Extension period Mr. Jolas was transferred to Cornell College and conductorship of the String Ensemble was assumed by Mr. Wotawa. The ensemble has definitely established its place as a cultural factor in the community and its performances have been a delight to all who have attended its concerts. It has featured works of Bach, Mozart, Haydn, Pergolesi, Stamitz, Corelli and many rarely heard composers. It has also afforded an opportunity for student soloists to appear with instrumental accompaniment.

THREE LITTLE MAIDS

"Three Little Maids", the Vocal Trio consisting of Katherine Dobbs, soprano, Louise Boggs, mezzo-soprano and Virginia Marshall, contralto, has become an institution in and about the community. An extensive repertoire has enabled them to provide entertainment for luncheon clubs, music societies, memorial and religious services, convocations, variety shows, and formal recitals. They were a featured part of radio broadcasts from station WHAS last year.

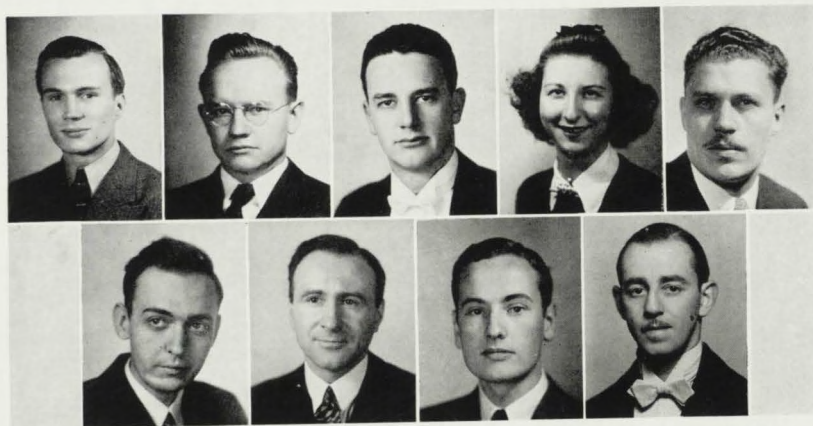

INSTRUMENTAL TRIO

An important instrumental group sponsored by the School of Music is the Instrumental Trio consisting of Ruth Beard, violinist, John Zurfluh, cellist and Doris Davis, pianist. Standard compositions for this combination have been the chief offering of this group including both classic and modern works. The versatility of this group has enabled it to provide music for the University broadcasts, recitals, commencements, special programs and luncheons. It is an example of the emphasis which the School of Music places upon ensemble music.

Tronic

Literary publication of U. of L., the University Magazine, is issued five times during the school year with a circulation numbering 2500 copies. The magazine is employed as an outlet for student literary talent, in whatever form it may be manifested.

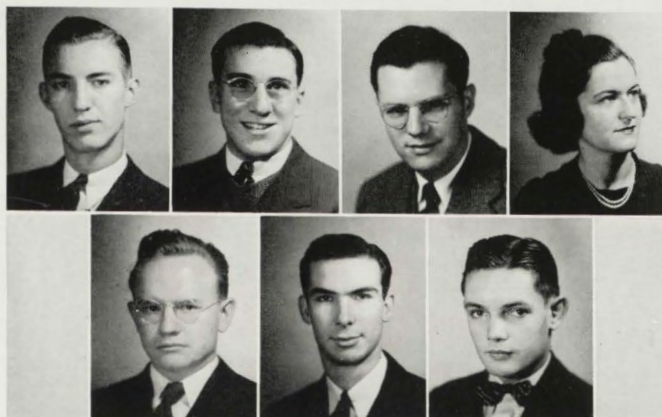

First issued in the Fall of 1936 as a joint student-alumni journal, the University's first editor was Thomas A. Bledsoe. He was succeeded the following year by Juanita Weyler.

In the Fall of 1938, the Alumni Association withdrew its funds from the magazine's budget, feeling that a publication of its own would better suffice its needs. As a result, the magazine for the year 1938-1939 was entirely a student publication.

A new all-University interest in student publications was manifested when J. J. Tronic, Dental Senior, assumed editorship of the magazine after the second issue.

First published September 16, 1932, succeeding the old Louisville News, a Liberal Arts publication, the Cardinal staff was formerly occupied by professional school students. Since 1934, however, with the removal of the office to Belknap Campus, Liberal Arts students have edited the paper, with other schools contributing.

First editor of the Cardinal was Charles DeSpain, from 1932-1932½, who was elected by the student body. J. J. Crumely was selected by the board of publications to edit the paper the following semester. A similar procedure has been followed ever since in selecting staff members.

Editor of the Cardinal from 1933-1934 was Edmund Baxter; Leon Schlossberg, 1934-1935; Lewis M. Cohen, 1935-1936; Robert N. Kelso, Jr., 1936-1937; William A. Stephenson, 1937-1938; and Rhodes Johnson, 1938-1939.

DEBATING

Avery Howry Cohen King Grodzins Lutz Ham Ray Hammil Taylor Haynes

The U. of L. Debaters, organized last Fall, is the culmination of sporadic attempts made during the last four years to revive forensic activities on Belknap Campus. The immediate objective of the group, now loosely organized as a panel, is to make debate a regular part of the school curriculum, to make it an important division of the department of speech, offering hour credit to participants.

Competition in speech tryouts was required for membership on the present panel. Candidates were asked to debate either side of the question, "Resolved: That Mr. Neville Chamberlain's foreign policy at Munich is to be commended," and their presentations were judged by professors of the History Department.

Organization has been simple. Dr. H. Sherwood Warwick accepted the responsibility of coaching the men, meeting them weekly last Fall to hear members of the panel debate among themselves in practice sessions. Edward E. Ham, Liberal Arts student, handled the administration, such as publicity and the contacting of outside schools for intercollegiate debates.

As a preliminary announcement of their work and intentions, the debaters sent two of their men, in collaboration with two faculty members, Drs. Warwick and Wilcox, into an encounter before an all-school convocation last Fall. "Should the United States co-operate in preserving world peace?" was the gist of the question. Beginning January, the panel brought seven intercollegiate debates to Belknap Campus; in each the current Pi Kappa Delta question, "Resolved: That the United States should cease to spend public funds, including public credits, to stimulate business," was argued. Asbury College came from Wilmore, Ky., January 24; Boston University, February 1; John Carroll University, Cleveland, Ohio, February 23; Davidson College, Davidson, N. C., March 23; Erskine College, Due West, S. C., March 31; and Tulane University, New Orleans, La., April 6. In addition the panel has sent two teams afield, one to Centre College in Danville, Ky. and one to DePauw in Greencastle, Ind.

Briefly stated, the U. of L. Debaters hope not only to give debate an honored place in the school curriculum, but also to increase their membership to the size that will justify further organization, the formation of Freshman and Varsity teams, and the setting up of a chapter of some one of the three national debate fraternities, Pi Kappa Delta, Tau Kappa Alpha, or Delta Sigma Rho.

MOOT COURT

The Moot Court is an activity conducted by the School of Law for the purpose of acquainting law students with trial procedure. Judges of the Jefferson Circuit Court preside over this court and conduct them in the manner of an ordinary trial, but students perform all other functions. August Winkinhoffer, Jr., acts as sheriff and L. S. Rogers, Jr., as clerk. Usually the cases are actual ones and the student attorney must prepare his case from the court record. In some cases, however, hypothetical factual situations are used.

The first case tried in this school year was that of Maryland Casualty Co. v. Adolph Vogel, which involved a question of subrogation; the suit was by the insurer of the Kentucky Grocery to recover for damages caused by the leaking of a sprinkler system in a building belonging to the defendant. John S. Palmore, Jr., and Howes Meade acted as counsel for the plaintiff and Walter Catinna and Robert L. Leopold were attorneys for the defendant. The jury awarded the plaintiff the sum of $1,900. Judge Eugene Hubbard presided.

The next case was heard by Judge Alex T. Farnsley, who sat as a referee of the Workmen's Compensation Board. The suit was that of Distler v. Republic Realty Co., in which the plaintiff was represented by Leslie M. Fry and Lucian Johnson; Carl A. Warns, Jr., and L. S. Rogers, Jr., were attorneys for the defense. The plaintiff's husband committed suicide two weeks after he received an injury in the building of his employer. The plaintiff contended that the injury occurred with and arose out of the employment and that the suicide was an unconscious act on the part of her husband which was produced by the accident. The referee ruled that the accident did occur within and arise out of the employment, but that the suicide was an act of conscious volition and therefore the defendant was entitled to the decision.

The third case was an equitable action brought before Judge Churchill Humphrey. Emmet V. Mittlebeeler and Charles B. Zirkle were counsel for the plaintiff; the defendant was represented by James Lual Taylor and William Biggs. The plaintiff, Clifton Hoerter, a slaughter house owner, brought this suit against the City of Louisville asking for a writ of mandamus to compel the Department of Public Health to furnish him with a meat inspector for a greater number of hours. He alleged that he was being discriminated against inasmuch as other slaughter house owners received more hours of inspection than he. The case was assigned for a rehearing.

The first criminal case involved the shooting of a negro policeman by another negro who was attempting to rob a grocery store. The defendant contended that the officer was accidentally shot while they were fighting for a gun; the prosecution asserted that the defendant shot the officer in the back as he was attempting to get away from the defendant. The evidence was clear that the defendant killed the officer while he was pleading for mercy. The jury found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to die in the electric chair. Jack Marshall and August Winkinhoffer prosecuted the negro and Fuller Harding and George Effinger defended him.

The case of Doake, Admr. of E. Draper, v. Linco Oil Co., et al., was brought to recover damages for the death of E. Draper. Draper was crushed to death when his automobile fell on him from a grease rack. It was successfully contended by the plaintiff that the facts were such that the defendant must explain the accident. This he failed to do and the plaintiff received a judgment for the sum of $15,000. The plaintiff's lawyers were Walter L. Catinna and L. S. Rogers, Jr.; counsel for the defendant were Carl A. Warns and Jordan Antle.

An award is presented to that set of attorneys which wins out in the Moot Court final argument. For the school year 1937-38, the award went to Joseph Stopher and Robert T. Burke, Jr.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND SECOND YEAR

A number of significant developments mark the course of the University of Louisville's progress during its one hundred and second year. All of these point to continued and increasing growth during its second century as during its first.

Much concern was manifested over the invitation of the New York University inviting President R. A. Kent to become dean of its College of Education. To the relief of thousands of Louisvillians who showed by their letters appreciation of Dr. Kent's great service to the University, the invitation was refused.

The outstanding event of the Summer Session was a series of forums led by Herbert Agar, nationally known columnist and political writer. During the Spring semester, Mr. Agar returned to give a series of four lectures on "The Democratic Way of Life." Another outstanding visitor to the campus during the Spring semester was Sinclair Lewis, who spoke to the students at the Playhouse.

A number of significant changes in policy came into effect during the year.

Breaking all precedents, a student, Morton Grodzins, was made director of Student Publications. For the first time in the history of the University, three publications were produced simultaneously under his direction. Mr. Grodzins also directed the new series of radio programmes, "University Cavalcade," the first of which was given November 13.

Announcement of a change in the fee assessment program was made, which was to go into effect in the fall of 1939. By this plan each student is to pay a flat fee instead of various differentiated laboratory, book, activity, and other fees. The amount is about ten per cent greater, an increase made necessary by a decrease in tax appropriation.

A retirement plan was set up, going into effect January, 1939, by which all professors, who may retire at sixty-five and must retire at seventy, are provided a small pension from funds supplied through donations from both the faculty and the Board of Trustees.

Mr. Blakey Helm was appointed to the Board to succeed Mr. Yancey Altsheler, whose term expired during the year, and Mr. Edward S. Jouett was reappointed as trustee.

The first of two All-University Convocations was held at the Memorial Auditorium, November 10, 1938, when

Mr. Barry Bingham addressed the student body on "Democracy versus Fascism." The second was the Founder's Day Convocation held April 3, 1939.

Significant at the School of Medicine was the addition of a number of faculty members. Dr. Arnold Griswold came to be head of Surgery in both the School and the City Hospital. Dr. William Parkins, who has pioneered with Dr. Swingle of Princeton in the study of cortin, joined the department of Physiology. Dr. William Keller came as Associate Professor of Psychiatry and Dr. A. M. Ambrose as Assistant Professor of Pharmacy.

During the year students of the School sent its first delegates to the national meeting of the American Association of Medical Students, of which they had recently formed a chapter.

The Alumni gave nine microscopes to the School, the rental from which is to be used to add to the supply. Each microscope is to be named in honor of some prominent alumnus; the first, bought recently from rental funds, was named in honor of Dr. Reiss Dabney.

Many important research projects are being carried on at the School, among them one in Endocrinology by Dr. L. Gray, supported by a $2,000 gift; one in Gynecology, through $1,000 from the Upjohn Company, and one in Pharmacology, supported annually by the Searle Company.

Undoubtedly, the Law School has undergone more physical changes than any of the other Schools. Probably everyone has seen or has heard about the new Law Building which has been erected on Belknap Campus. This is certainly the most outstanding event occurring to the Law School during this year, and is a step closer to the realization of the Larson Plan—the University of 2037 A. D.

The Law School has been endowed with many generous gifts. Louis D. Brandeis, former U. S. Supreme Court Justice and a patron of the University Law School, has given numerous government publications, chief of which are the Supreme Court Briefs. Generous gifts of money to the Law School this year are from Mrs. Atilla Cox and Judge Allan and family for the Memorial Moot Court Room. Miscellaneous government publications, books, mahogany bookcases have been given or secured by Emmet O'Neal, Edward S. Jouett, Marshal Bensinger, Martin Duffy, and Mrs. Charles Moorman.

Sinclair Lewis, novelist and Nobel Prize winner, addressed a campus audience, February 18, 1939.

Mr. Russell Neill Sullivan has taken the place of Dr. Wendell Carnahan on the staff of the Law School. He has recently received his LL.M. degree from Columbia University.

Although Dr. Karl Stecher is not now a member of the Law School faculty, he has written a book entitled Cases on Agency and Partnership which was published while Dr. Stecher was still a member of the Law School faculty. The Washington University Law Quarterly has published an article on Insurance Law which was written by Mr. Robert L. Taylor, also a faculty member.

The Moot Court and the Briefing Service are two valuable services of the Law School, for both the students themselves and the citizens of Louisville. The purpose of the Briefing Service is to offer a service to the lawyers of Kentucky who have not all of the library facilities which are necessary.

During the last year the U. of L. Dental School faculty has not been without distinction. Dean J. T. O'Rourke has been appointed to membership in the Council on Dental Education of the American Dental Association. This association is the accrediting agency in Dentistry. Dr. R. E. Meyers, likewise a member of the faculty, has been elected President of the Louisville District Dental Society and has also recently become a member of the American College of Dentists. A little-known fact to the citizens of Louisville and, indeed, to the students of the University, is that the Journal of Dental Education, the only magazine of its kind, was founded and is edited at the University of Louisville. Dr. O'Rourke aided in its founding and is now the present editor. It is published by the American Association of Dental Schools.

Two new names have been added to the roster of the Dental School faculty. Dr. Grant Van Huysen, Assistant Professor of Oral Pathology, and Dr. Morris Wilson, Instructor in Operative Dentistry.

It is easy to see that the entire faculty participates in dental activities all over the country. In March four faculty members addressed the International Association for Dental Research: Dr. K. P. Pfeiffer, Dr. R. E. Meyers, Dr. H. T. Knighton, and Dr. Grant Van Huysen.

Not only have there been changes in personnel, but there has also been an important change in graduation requirements. The faculty has abolished the point-hour system for graduation and has installed a new system whereby the seniors are given a series of rigorous examinations, both clinical and factual.

In 1938 there has been a marked growth in the number of applicants for admission to the Dental School; in fact, only one out of six is permitted to enter. The enrollment, which consists of students from such widely separated states as Maine, Texas, and Florida, is growing constantly.

As for the College of Liberal Arts, the year 1939 concludes the five-year study of the Experimental Freshman Plan. By this plan students were permitted to enter the University after only three years of high school. The results of the experiment are extremely satisfactory, showing that the experimentals maintained as good records as the control students.

Another event of educational importance is that the College of Liberal Arts has joined in a Cooperative Study in General Education, under the American Council of Education, of which Dr. Rauch Tyler is director. The U. of L. College of Liberal Arts is one of twenty-two colleges which have joined in this research study in general education on the Junior College level. Through this study it is hoped that improvement in curriculum, personnel, evaluation techniques, and methods of teaching may result. This is a three-year study of the General Education Board.

There have been numerous changes in faculty in the College. Dr. Charles F. Virtue, Acting Chairman of the Department of Philosophy, has taken the place of Dr. Morley C. Caldwell, whom the University lost by death. The Economics Department has two new members: Dr. John D. Gragg, Assistant Professor of Economics, and Mr. Woodrow M. Strickler. Dr. Aerol Arnold has taken the place of Dr. Harvey Webster of the English Department, who is on a leave of absence. Mrs. Bertella Russell has become Assistant Professor of Home Economics, and Miss Katherine Montgomery, part-time Instructor in Physics. Dr. Lawrence Whisler has taken the place of Miss Lily Detchen, who is at the University of Chicago working for her doctorate in Education.

Dean J. J. Oppenheimer has collaborated with Dr. Paustian of Stephens College in writing Problems of Modern Society, which was recently published.

Speed School began its year with a new dean, Ford Lee Wilkinson, Jr., a graduate of Annapolis, who was a commanding officer in the U. S. Navy before coming to Speed School to take the place of the late Dean B. M. Brigman. The Fall quarter showed a record enrollment, as in all schools, with a fifty per cent increase over previous enrollments.

Most outstanding event of the year in Speed School was the organization of a Division of Industrial Research, to provide to various industries services of the school in engineering and applied sciences. It will both strengthen research in the school, and hence the position of the school, and provide valuable research service to industry.

Among other research at the Engineering School are several research fellowships, among them one from the Don Chemical Company for Research in Cellulose, a fund from Louisville Oil and Paint and Pigment research. The National Federation of Paint and Varnish Production Clubs has given a fellowship for research in paint and varnish to start next Fall, which will probably be a five-year programme. Speed School is proud of receiving this fellowship, for which it was selected above many other engineering schools.

A number of important visitors were on the campus during the year. Among them were Professor A. G. Christie of Johns Hopkins, president of the American Association of Mechanical Engineers, who addressed the University chapter of that organization; Dr. J. A. Perrine, of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, and Dr. George Beich of E. I. DuPont de Nemours Company, of Wilmington, Delaware.

The current year was the first year of the University of Louisville's Chamber Music Society, during which four concerts were presented, including the Coolidge String Quartette, a gift of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation; the Gordon String Quartette, and the Heermann Trio. Kathleen Parlow and Gunnar Johansen also participated in concerts.

Approximately twenty-five concerts were given during the year by Music School students and faculty. Two of the students won their respective divisions in the state-wide biennial contest of the Kentucky Division of the National Federation of Music Clubs. Virginia Williams, mezzo-soprano, a pupil of Mme. Cara Sapin, won in the young artist division, and Doris Davis, pianist, a pupil of Dwight Anderson, won in the student musician division. On April 15, they competed with winners from six other states in Memphis.

The only addition to the Music School faculty was Ernest Lyon, who was appointed Instructor in Music and Director of the Band.

IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE?

Is there a doctor in the house who is disgusted with all this tommyrot about the medicinal effects of cigarettes? (Gentlemen, the line forms on the right!)

It may interest you to know that KOOL Cigarettes do not cure a blessed thing, nor do they say they will. They are, however, in great demand because of their delightful flavor, the result of adding a tiny bit of refreshing menthol to a blend of finest, mild tobaccos. It's the same idea as mint in chewing gum.

IN THE FOREGOING PAGES THE STAFF OF THE 1939 THOROUGHbred HAS ATTEMPTED TO FURTHER AMONG ALL THE SCHOOLS OF THE UNIVERSITY A FEELING OF UNITY AND SOLIDARITY, AND PROVIDE, FOR THE CLASSES OF 1939 AND 1940, SOME REMINDER OF THE YEARS SPENT HERE. AS THE 1939 VOLUME IS CONCLUDED, THE EDITOR WISHES TO EXPRESS HIS THANKS —

To President RAYMOND A. KENT for his co-operation in materializing the plans and hopes for The 1939 Thoroughbred, and his appreciation of our problems.

To MR. W. S. RINEHART of the Fetter Printing Co. for his assistance, advice, and many courtesies in the printing of the book.

To MR. MELZAR G. LOWE, V, of the Standard Gravure Co., for his help in the preparation of the engraving.

To MR. JESS CUSICK, SR., and his associates in photography for the work they have done in taking and compiling pictures of students and faculty.

To MR. J. J. TRONIC of the School of Dentistry for his efforts at that unit of the University in behalf of The Thoroughbred.

To The Filson Club of Louisville, the Louisville Gas and Electric Co., and DR. WILLIAM C. MALLALIEU of the College of Liberal Arts for information and pictures regarding the history of the University.

To MRS. MORTON GRODZINS for her co-operation in mounting the photographs and making up the book.

To MR. MORTON GRODZINS, director of student publications, for his tireless energy and activity in making The Thoroughbred a reality.

To the officers of the organizations of the University which gave us their support.

And as a final word, the editor extends his thanks to the other members of The Thoroughbred staff, without whose loyal activity and interest the publication would have been an impossibility.
